It is a privilege to serve as the director of Lakewood Public Library. I am grateful for the opportunity to work with the Library’s talented staff, the selfless volunteers of our support organizations and all the members of this vibrant community.

Last year, I had the added pleasure of working with sculptor Peter Diepenbrock as he prepared to install his masterpiece, Transversion, on the Library’s northwest lawn. The Foundation’s Art Committee chose wisely when they selected Peter for this task. Not only is he a great artist, but he is an excellent project manager, too. No detail was left to chance. Despite the sculpture’s elegant beauty, it is strong enough to last for centuries—and I daresay it will lose none of its enchantment in those hundreds of years. It is clear to me that this artist understands the importance of public art just as he understands the role of public libraries in our society.

Not a single tax dollar was used on Transversion. All funds were privately raised by the Lakewood Public Library Foundation, a non-profit organization dedicated to helping the Library maintain the excellence of its services and ensuring long-term stability. I thank Lynn Foran for serving on the Foundation Board, most recently as its President. It was under Mrs. Foran’s leadership that the Foundation installed three major works of art, added more public computers, offered academic assistance to college-bound seniors and set aside money for the Library’s next rainy day.

I would also like to thank the Friends of Lakewood Public Library, under the leadership of Paul Dimmick, for their efforts to recycle good books and provide funds for all the wonderful programs you will read about in this guide. What a different place the Library would be without their book sales and good cheer!

I encourage anyone reading this letter to learn more about the Foundation and the Friends on pages 29 and 30, respectively. As always, we look forward to seeing you at your Library.

MARCH 4
Brian Henke: Selections from the Living Gallery of Natural Wonders
His virtuoso guitar evokes a personal vision of nature like the beauty of a treetop set against a deep blue sky. It can be described by words, but to experience it you have to see it and hear it for yourself. Brian Henke heralds the return of spring.

MARCH 18
Dos Gatos: Latin Love
Classical guitarist Robert Gruca and soprano Liz Huff embark on a romantic tour of Latin soundscapes, drawing inspiration from the language, music and styles of Spain and Brazil.

RW Magic’s Afternoon of Amazement
Presto! The master is back with astonishing feats of modern wonderment—and a few tricks from the old school. This time the magic will happen in the audience’s very hands so that they can feel what they can’t quite believe.

APRIL 1
The Smokin’ Fez Monkeys
No Joke! This modern jug band, with old-fashioned ideas about having fun, seeks to do for our concert series what the Wienermobile did for the auto. But don’t let the laughs fool you. They really know their way around a whole grab bag of instruments and will play their hearts out for you if you just stamp your feet.

APRIL 15
A Tribute to Daniel Thompson: The People’s Poet
To celebrate National Poetry Month, we offer this video presentation of a once-in-a-lifetime gathering of the late poet laureate’s peers, critics, friends and admirers that took place last year at Lakewood Public Library. Testimonials and readings of major works are interrupted by spontaneous poetry and other works of art. It makes it seem like the big-hearted, mischievous man was there the whole time.

APRIL 22
Transportation Boulevard Jazz Quintet
The Boulevard swings hard through jazz, blues, Latin, and Bop, channeling the night club energy of the 50s and 60s—but they’re best known for pinpoint control and mastery of small, intimate environments. This is an opportunity to observe the streetcar up close and watch the sparks fly.

APRIL 29
Muszikat Shalom: The American Folk Music Revival
Nancy Bernstein and Drene Ivy sing the story of America’s rediscovery of a rich folk tradition that stretches back through the centuries. Pete Seeger started it off with his rendition of Leadbelly’s “Good Night, Irene” back in 1949. Now, in much the same way, Muszikat Shalom will reignite distant memories of The Weavers, Burl Ives and the Kingston Trio.

MAY 6
Bella Italia: A Photographic Journey
Lakewood’s own Marcello Mellino takes you to lush corners of Italy unseen by most tourists and documents a small town way of life before it disappears. Witness the people, their land and the rustic architecture of the villages. Savor this taste of their daily lives.

MAY 13
Renaissance: The NorthCoast Consort of Violas
You already know the paintings, sculptures and architecture of the remarkable era that delivered mankind from the Dark Ages into the Enlightenment. Now listen to the music that got the Renaissance humming played on authentic reproductions of viola da gambas, recorders and other instruments of the time.
MAY 20  Wallace Coleman: Deeply Rooted in the Blues
Lyrics tell the basic story, but the characters are found etched into every piece of gravel in his voice. Wash away the worries of times long gone with the golden tones of his harmonica. Wallace Coleman plays old school blues with friends, D.C. Carnes and John Lucic. When we say living legend, this is what we’re talking about!

JUNE 3  Jody Getz and Friends
This laid-back super group was originally put together as a simple gathering of friends. But with musical backgrounds as diverse as zydeco, blues, folk, rock and pop, they discovered a new sound that they couldn’t put down. George Lee and John Lucic join the award-winning songwriter with her name in the title for an exciting new mix of standards and originals.

JUNE 10  The Art of Stained Glass
Judy Kean of the Glass Studio presents an illuminated history of stained glass with special emphasis on the treasures of Tiffany and the personal designs of Frank Lloyd Wright. A discussion of evolving techniques leads to the current era with glimpses of the future as seen in examples of her own work.

JUNE 24  Jackie and Gary: Singing the Good Old Songs Again
This shining folk duo is living out a dream, crisscrossing the country to play venues big and small and making friends everywhere with their favorite songs. They’ve never been to Lakewood before, so let’s greet them with open arms and send them off with raucous applause. There’s a smile in it for you.

JULY 1  Diana Chittester
No one taught her but her guitar. The music just had to come out. And while this energetic young singer-songwriter is hardly a newcomer, we predict a long and rewarding career ahead. See her perform here and you’ll be able to tell your friends that you once saw her play at the Library.

JULY 15  Mark Twain Reflects
Since retiring from gainful employment, storyteller Charles Kiernan has taken to fobbing himself off as Mark Twain with some success. When he puts on the white linen, he is wont to ramble on about boyhood memories, newspapers, politicians and frogs. Mostly, though, he likes to talk about the river.

JULY 29  Neo-Tessares Saxophone Quartet
You wanted something different? Traditional jazz meets 18th century dance music, English baroque and popular 20th century song forms in this innovative hour of expert improvisation. The results will be richly rewarding for theorists, yet instantly accessible to the casual listener. Plus, four saxophones!

AUGUST 5  Doug Wood: Progressive Acoustic Instrumental
Doug Wood’s instrumental music can shift from a sweet fingerstyle guitar piece to a composition that loops energetic world rhythms with various percussion instruments in the blink of an eye. A wry sense of humor connects it all with tales of the road.

AUGUST 12  Sommerfugl
The butterfly is the summer fool—a perfect mascot for this band of delicate beauty, surprising strength and vibrant color. William Drake and Holly Overton perform love songs, torch songs and other surprises on violin and guitar with soaring vocal harmonies that stretch out like the last days of summer.
The Life and Works of Hart Crane:
From Garretsville to Brooklyn and Beyond
The life of Hart Crane was tragically short, but his impact on the world of poetry was large and the list of those he has influenced is long. Tim Tavcar, the artistic director of WordStage invites you to contemplate the legacy of this buckeye-born literary giant through poems, letters and the music of his time. Inspired by the epic achievement of T.S. Eliot’s The Wasteland, yet also repulsed by its ironic despair, Crane challenged himself to articulate, “a mystic synthesis of America” that celebrated the possibility of life. Sometimes disturbing and often transporting, his body of verse emphasizes the strange beauty and innate spirituality of the modern world as he saw it at the dawn of the 20th century.

Medieval Ohio: a poem for d.a. levy
New Words Inspired by a Cleveland Original
Poet Richard Blevins has recently completed a major new work inspired by the short, fervent life of Cleveland poet, publisher and artist d.a. levy. Kenneth Warren, the former director of Lakewood Public Library, and poet-publisher Tod Thilleman will join Blevins for a roiling discussion of the deep Cleveland history and unchecked hermeticism that gripped the imagination in the 1960s and continues to speak in poetry. The lowercased levy, best known for works such as The North American Book of the Dead, Cleveland Undercovers, and Suburban Monastery Death Poem aspired to nothing less than reading everything, writing everything and losing himself in infinity. His vision and ambition live on over forty years after his death. Books will be available for sale and signing at the event.

TRANSVERSION POETRY CONTEST
There’s something about Transversion, the new sculpture by Peter Diepenbrock on the Main Library’s northwest lawn. We see it every day on our way into the Library and it stirs something inside of us—but we can’t quite put it into words. What is it?! Surely somewhere in this city of dreamers, builders and teachers there must be some poets. To find that person—and to put words to the images conjured by Diepenbrock’s bronze and steel—the Lakewood Public Library is sponsoring a poetry contest. The poem can take any form, but we’d prefer something that we can print in the Fall and Winter Program Guide. It can be about how the sculpture relates to the Library, to the city, to you or your family—or it can be about some aspect we haven’t thought of yet. Just make sure that it has something to do with Transversion. The prize is a gift card to Players on Madison worth $200. All entries become the property of Lakewood Public Library. The contest is open to anyone but employees of Lakewood Public Library, their immediate families and Peter Diepenbrock.
Entries will be accepted during National Poetry Month between April 1 and April 30.
E-mail your entry, along with your name, address and phone number to transversion@lakewoodpubliclibrary.org
Langston Hughes Listens to America

Presented by the Players of Karamu House

Langston Hughes spent some important formative years in Cleveland—and Kansas, Missouri, Illinois and New York City. But it was during his days as a Cleveland high schooler that he first began to write. Designated as the class poet against his will—because black kids were supposed to have rhythm—he trudged through banal themes of school spirit and eventually grew to become one of our country’s most penetrating and insightful voices as a poet, playwright, screenwriter, short story writer and novelist. The Karamu Theatre Outreach Performance Series makes a special contribution to our poetry celebration with a stylized ‘choreopoem’ of eleven of Langston Hughes’ most profound and moving poems set to the music of drums and brought to life with stylized movement. Writing at a time when the contributions of African Americans to our history were often minimized or disregarded, Hughes brought hidden struggles and dreams to light with humor, pathos and an unerring sense of justice.

Great Poems of the Classical Era:

In Greek, Latin and English Translation

An appreciation of poetry and its founding role in our language, our history and our culture is incomplete without a little Greek and Latin. From the Theogeny to the Iliad to the Odyssey to the Aeneid, the building blocks of metaphor, expression and thought were first laid down in the verse of the ancients and have been repeated ever since. Stergios Lazos and Daniel Cavoli of St. Edward High School will read selections from the Classical tradition in both the original language and English translation and breathe new life into the stories that shaped our world. Selected students will also read from their own modern interpretations of the Aeneid and the Metamorphosis.

Selected Correspondence of Kenneth Patchen:

A Controversial Ohio Poet in His Own Words

New insights into the life of a rebel poet, born in the shadow of Youngstown’s steel mills, are brought to light with the publication of Selected Correspondence of Kenneth Patchen by Bottom Dog Press. Patchen’s biographer, Dr. Larry Smith, joins the new volume’s editor, Allen Frost, for a live rekindling of the poet’s journey with readings of his poems and letters and a discussion of his impact on jazz poetry, the Beat Generation and many others who followed. Read over Patchen’s shoulder with correspondence to and from such literary giants as Henry Miller, Kenneth Rexroth, e.e. cummings, Dylan Thomas, as well as publishers James Laughlin and Cleveland’s Jasper Wood. Many artists are averse to labels, but Patchen simply refused them, encompassing yet growing beyond proletariat poetry, dadaism, surrealism with a forceful and original gift that never stopped innovating with protests, elegies, jazz plays, experimental novels, picture poems and love poems. Books will be available for sale and signing at the event.

The period of the American West began at about the time of the Civil War and ended around the beginning of the twentieth century. As historians documented actual events, the creators of myths and legends related tall tales in dime novels. What really went on out there, just beyond the sunset? Pioneer filmmakers followed these legends into the West, creating new stories for a new medium. Film Professor Terry Meehan rides into town from west of the Pecos to present a series of western films from the very beginning in 1903 to an acknowledged masterpiece in 1948. Meehan will introduce each film with rare clips and original documentaries, with a lively discussion to follow. These films are not rated.

Western Movies, The Early Years: 1903 - 1948

Western Debut Double Feature

The Great Train Robbery (1903)
Directed by E. S. Porter

On August 29, 1900 near Table Rock, Wyoming, Butch Cassidy and his gang held up Union Pacific’s Train #3, blew up the safe and got away with $5,000. Three years later, pioneer filmmaker Edwin S. Porter shot an 11-minute one-reeler inspired by that event, and thus the western movie was born.

Tumbleweeds (1925)
Directed by King Baggot

William S. Hart was the first of a long line of western heroes and Tumbleweeds is his masterpiece. It is also one of the finest silent films ever made. The centerpiece of the action depicts the infamous Oklahoma land rush of 1889, an event filmed many times since, including 1992’s Far and Away. Many observers, however, believe that no movie captured it better than Baggot’s Tumbleweeds.

Stagecoach (1939)
Directed by John Ford

Once critics had finally declared the western dead for good, John Ford led a caravan of cameras and crew into Utah’s Monument Valley to breathe new life into his favorite genre. Nine characters from all classes of society—and from both sides of the law—find themselves confined and in danger as they cross through red-rock country on the Stagecoach to Lordsburg.

The Ox-Bow Incident (1943)
Directed by William Wellman

After a long, dusty cattle drive, two trail-weary cowboys, Henry Fonda and Harry Morgan, stop in the town of Bridger Wells, Nevada, tie up their horses and head to Darby’s Saloon. They get word that three suspicious outsiders have been accused of cattle rustling and a lynch mob is on the move. Since they are outsiders themselves, what should they do? The studio shelved this movie for two years because it qualified as neither wartime propaganda nor escapist entertainment.

My Darling Clementine (1946)
Directed by John Ford

John Ford returns to Monument Valley to tell the story of civilization coming to the West. The once-wild town of Tombstone has a barbershop, a church and a school. Henry Fonda plays Wyatt Earp. He and his brothers have abandoned their old ways and become well-groomed, responsible citizens. With the arrival of Clementine the schoolmarm to add beauty and smarts, Tombstone may finally be ready for its close-up. But who are those guys with guns hanging around the O.K. Corral?

Red River (1948)
Directed by Howard Hawks

Red River tells the epic tale of the cattle drive that opened up the Chisholm Trail in 1867. Like the Odyssey and the Exodus, the journey is fraught with conflict and adventure, but also symbolizes the great American movement westward. Leading the ambitious journey is John Wayne, a ruthless authority figure who runs things his own way. His stepson, Montgomery Clift, has ideas of his own. As in many Wayne movies, the conflict ends in a brawl, brilliantly staged by director Hawks. Only Joanne Dru has the firepower to break it up.

Love And Death (1975)  Directed by Woody Allen  Rated PG

Woody Allen takes on the Russian novel and falls in love… Then he dies, too. Arguably his most ambitious film, it's been largely ignored because it's also hilarious. A pre-Annie Hall Diane Keaton joins in the fun, nailing Tolstoy to the wall with battlefields, duels, doomed marriages and a remarkably inept attempt on Napoleon's life. Put a bookmark in your tattered War and Peace and see for yourself.

Dead Poets Society (1989)  Directed by Peter Weir  Rated PG

Oh Captain, My Captain… There is nothing more dangerous than a teenager exposed to the passions and sorrows of those who choose to live as poets. The boys who lead this film are being groomed to rule the world, not to experience it. And any teacher who dares his charges to face death and feel each moment of their lives is only courting danger. Get up on your desk and celebrate National Poetry Month with defiance.

Saturday, April 14 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

Wee Willie Winkie (1937)  Directed by John Ford  Rated PG

The legendary director of such gritty fare as The Searchers and Stagecoach makes the perfect Shirley Temple film, setting her otherworldly sweetness and curls against a grim backdrop of weary British soldiers occupying a hostile foreign land. Singing and dancing is kept at a minimum so you’ll have to settle for a genuinely uplifting story, short on cloying sentiment. Shirley’s favorite!

Saturday, May 12 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

Micmacs (2009)  Directed by Jean-Pierre Jeunet  Rated R

Why do films exposing the corrupt humanity of death-dealing arms merchants always have to be so dreary and depressing? The director of Amélie has found another way. A ruined victim of random violence teams with a colorful band of misfits to pit the manufacturer of the bullet in his brain against the maker of the landmine that took his father’s life with one brave shenanigan after another. In French with English subtitles.

Saturday, June 9 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

Captain America (2011)  Directed by Joe Johnston  Rated PG-13

Cap is the kind of hero that other heroes look up to. But at the beginning of World War II, he was just a scrawny kid, unfit to serve. Not content to sit at home with freedom on the line, he will endure agonizing punishment to unleash his potential. He will stand as a symbol of decency against thuggery and lend a hand to those who fight for the inalienable rights of all humankind. But not every soldier gets to come home to his best girl...

Saturday, July 14 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

THX-1138 (1971)  Directed by George Lucas  Rated R

This film, shot on location in the future, follows the flight of fugitive Robert Duvall from the point of view of the police state. In the video labyrinth, good citizens are drug-addled and empty because emotional attachment is a crime. But why? Despite the bleak set-up, there is a strange sense of humor embedded in the hopelessness. Can you spot the prisoner who speaks in Nixon speeches? One of the first independent American films of the modern era was also the directorial debut of the man behind Star Wars.

Chariots of Fire (1981)
Directed by Hugh Hudson
Rated PG
During the 1924 Olympic Games in France, English university student Ben Cross and Scottish missionary Ian Charleson compete for England. The Scotsman runs for the glory of God. The Cambridge man runs against prejudice. Both athletes have trained to the maximum. A world-class American team is their biggest threat.
Saturday, March 24 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

A Woman's Face (1941)
Directed by George Cukor
Not Rated
Given a new face and a fresh chance at life by her plastic surgeon, blackmailer Joan Crawford remains attached to a cash-strapped, high-rolling Conrad Veidt, her cruel partner in crime. When Veidt concocts a diabolical plan to eliminate his main obstacle to a family fortune, will she have the willpower to stop him?
Saturday, April 21 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

Simone (2002)
Directed by Andrew Niccol
Rated PG-13
Desperate film producer Al Pacino has a movie to make but no star. His ex-wife, studio chief Catherine Keener, is less than sympathetic. Then, somewhere out of the shadows, a dying genius appears with a CD containing a secret computer program. He begs the filmmaker to take it. What's on the disc is nothing less than manna from heaven. Her name is Simone.
Saturday, May 19 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

Dark Passage (1947)
Directed by Delmer Daves
Not Rated
Convicted of killing his wife, Humphrey Bogart escapes from San Quentin and a manhunt ensues. He befriends a trusting young Lauren Bacall who secretes him away in her apartment. But when a friend of his is found shot to death, Bogart’s the prime suspect and the police double their efforts to catch him.
Saturday, June 16 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

Assassination Tango (2002)
Directed by Robert Duvall
Rated R
Hitman Robert Duvall, on assignment in Buenos Aires, spies a couple performing the tango and is instantly mesmerized. When he meets dancer Luciana Pedraza in a café, she arranges tango lessons for him. They go dancing together. Now he wears two hats—assassin by day, tanguero by night.
Saturday, July 21 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

Mad City Chickens (2008)
Directed by Tashai Lovington and Robert Lughai
This sometimes whimsical look at city folk raising chickens in their own backyards provides serious food for thought. Chicken experts join barnyard authors, a rescued landfill hen, an inexperienced family taking the poultry plunge and a mad professor with a giant hen taking to the streets. This humorous and heartfelt trip is presented by Cherise Sims of Hens in Lakewood, an urban agriculture education group.
Thursday, March 15 at 7:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

Beats, Rhymes and Life: The Travels of A Tribe Called Quest (2011)
Directed by Michael Rappaport
Will A Tribe Called Quest ever make music together again? That's the question that drives this fan-letter documentary through the history of hip hop into the ineffable mystery of creative collaboration. For the uninitiated, A Tribe Called Quest was the animating force behind the Native Tongues movement, positive rappers more concerned with self-expression than gold chain status. You should know... This film has been rated R for innovative language.
Thursday, April 12 at 7:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium
Seth and Marcy are loners. He’s plagued by an abusive father. She suffers from Tourette’s Syndrome. An escape to the promised land of Canada quickly spirals out of control. Can a bond built out of loneliness survive their personal demons? This movie earned Robin Tunney a best actress award at the Venice Film Festival, but unfortunately never made it to DVD in the States. With the director’s permission, we proudly present the first digital transfer.
Saturday, March 31 at 6:00 p.m. in the Main Library Auditorium

Bright Star (2009)  Directed by Jane Campion  Rated PG
Poet John Keats left behind a brilliant body of work. He also left behind Fanny Brawne. After a magical three year love affair, his life was cut tragically short at the age of twenty-five. This moving period piece explores the tenderness and innocence of their love in lyrical strokes reminiscent of his ageless poetry. A fitting end to National Poetry Month...

Dear Lakewood,

The Lakewood Public Library Foundation makes a low priority of calling attention to itself because its members are happiest when the spotlight is on the Library. These generous people who donate their time and energy do so because they believe that this city has something special in its Library and they want to see it continue long past their own personal fame.

While other libraries across the nation reduce hours, shutter branches and lower ambitions, the Lakewood Public Library has held strong and continued to move forward. Its success is, in no small part, thanks to the support of the Foundation. The endowment fund established in 2001 helps to ensure that the Library can weather almost any financial storm and still retain its inventive and independent spirit—but shrewd investment is only the beginning.

In recent years, the Foundation has turned its attention to providing free Princeton Review ACT test preparation courses to the city’s hungriest high school minds. The short term benefits include better college options and more scholarship dollars. By investing in our most promising youth, the Foundation aims at nothing less than preparing our community for the unknowable challenges and opportunities of the future.

Of course, the most striking contributions that have been made to the Library are also the most sublime. By adorning the renovated Main Library with significant works of public art, the Foundation has cemented the Library’s place in Lakewood culture by seeding the imaginations of visitors and creating an atmosphere of inspired learning. The nature sculptures of David Deming invite small children to touch, experience and bond with the house of storytelling while Richard Haas’s Grand Reading Room murals provide an atmosphere of hushed awe for all those who come to get lost in a good book. And now, Peter Diepenbrock’s Transversion completes the Library with an endless supply of fresh perspectives.

While many of us believe that Lakewood is the best place to live in this country, none of us believe that we can afford to stop trying to make it better. By that same reasoning, the Lakewood Public Library Foundation tasks itself with the fortification of Lakewood Public Library.

Thank you for your support,

Lakewood Public Library Foundation

Dear Friends and Patrons,

The Friends are working both smarter and harder to find new ways to support Lakewood Public Library. We now have a system where we work directly with the staff to fill the Library’s collection with needed books and materials. By doing so, we help to offset thousands of dollars lost by reduced state support. The money we raise with book sales is used primarily to fund free concerts, films and lectures open to all and to support special activities for the children. We also have a hand in providing funds and materials to make the facilities more attractive and comfortable for our patrons.

We are proud to say that we are increasing both the size of our venues and the number of sales. Our online offerings continue to grow by leaps and bounds. The ongoing Friends Sale tables in the Main Library’s Atrium are cleaned out on a regular basis by savvy Lakewood shoppers. And we enjoy participating in the city’s many Detroit Avenue events with sales on the “Porch.”

To support these operations we have been blessed with a great quantity of quality books and materials donated by you and your neighbors. We thank you for your patronage and support in these trying times!
